AMERICAN LOCOMOTRUS BY $15-14.

The following is an extract from the corres-nombrace of United States Consuls : .. if the first ten locomotives were imported to St. Petersburg in 1872 from the Bale wir Locamotive Works of Philadel dua, followed by twenty from the same firm. The great amount of this incipient trade will be apparent from the fact that there is an immense field here open her their inport for many generations to come, the spilroid lines of Russia have just commerced to fewel p on a grander scale, those in operation hardly reaching to 18,000 English indies up to this day. The small focomotives herelof re built m Russia, (at the rate of 100 to 120 only a year), also those imported from Germany, France, and belgium, were all built for consumption if wood in-1, till the agent of the Philade phia firm had brought the attention of the consuming de partir ents to the fact that anthrac to coa of the best sality can be found around the own of Carriages and R. Ling Zorses for Watersch, in Sanhern Russia, extending over the niles, and that whole regions were bound ing with it in the southern half of the impire, sufficient to feed the locomotives of the whole continent. The American locomotives, finally accepted and introduced here being expressly sian expital to the development of the now quite numerous coal nones in the districts name l. - th account of the faultless finish of the American locomotives and their superior power (guaranteed to haul on a level 10,075 tons in

A correspondent thus relates the romant c way in which the Empress of Austria captured her Emperor; "The impress is the youngest caugh-ter o Duke Maximi ian oseph of Bavaria, and sister of the ex Queen Sophia of Naples. Francis oseph was to have been affianced o the Princess Sophia, to make acquaintance with whom he went to make a visit to his oncle s castle of Possenhoffen, where his four young lady cousins had been horn and brought #2. The l'encess Elizabeth, then in her sixteenth year, and emarkably heautiful, was not to have been allowed to see the young Emperor, both because on a count of her youth -she was not supposed to be 'out,' and also because, being much land-somer than her sisters, the wiy Duke desired to secure his imperial ne shew for his eldest raughter before the former stould have been allowed to katch sight of his youngest, as he felt very sure that the hand of such a beauty as she womshou d ze in the matrimonial market. So the yourg lady was told that she was to stay with ser governess, and not to wesume to show hersel' n he drawing room cuting the visit of the Austrian cousin. But being lively, spiriter, and brimful of curiosity to see the youthful disperor who had so succeeded to the troubler, but rilliant crown of Austria, the Princess Elizabeth contrived to give her attendant the s.in, and to hele herself in a corridor, along which the impeti i guest, who has arrived an hour before, and was then cressing for cinner in the rooms and was then creasing for cinner in the rooms set spart for his reception, would have to pass in going to the hanqueting ha. As the young sovereign passed along this corridor the Princess, who was watering or him, sprang out to her like ing. place, laughing at the success of ar management and continuously the single page. neaver, and crying saily, Cousin Franz! Coasin France: I wanted to see you and they wouldn't let me, and so I hid myse f here to see you go It appears that Cupidle bow, so innocent shot of by the merry gir, who had no thought beyond the gratification of her curiosity to see the grand young cousin, whose quality is more. for the exciter for immediation, went straiget to the mark. The young Emperor fell over head and ears in ove with the Beautiful vision that had prescribed itself so madicatedly before him. W at passed between the two young seep e has never transpired; but a new emaster are the imperial goest entered the crawing-room with his young cousin on his arm, and present to her to be amaged circle of re-slives and countiers, w 20 were awaiting his autearance, as 4ne Em-

cumstances. The young Princess lined that day in the hanqueting sall, scated beside the 'Cousin Franz,' so sucderly metamorphosed into her 'imperial spouse,' and the Duke, though vexed for the disappointment of his eldest daughter, had at least the satisfaction of having this splended match securer for his youngest. The marriage took p ace when the frincess has reached the mature age of sixteen, and all berhusband's sub-jecte were exchanted with her youthful beauty and her remarkable grace and kindness.

AUNT RACHEUS SHORY. Sit down on the porch, children, and let me tell you about Aunt Rachel, and the story she once told me. One day, when I was about twelve years old. I had planned the after strawberries, but Aunt Rachel sax to a . "A girl of your age should be an to lea 1 how to do housework. Take off your hat, roll up your steeves, and help me to co the baking."

I pouted and sighed and shed tears, but was couraged by the promise that I might go after the haking. Under good Aunt Rachel's direc-tion I mixed a big loaf of bread, places, it on a tin as bright as a new dollar, and was rubbing the flour off my hands when she called out: "This will never, never do, child you haven't scraped your bread-lowl clean."

I shall never forget the picture she made standing there, her eyes regarding me sternly, one hand resting on her hip, while in the other she held the untidy bowl.

"It will never do, child," she went on, "in is not only untidy, but it makes too much waste, to be a good housekeeper you must learn to be economical. You have heard the story of the young man who wanted an economical · wife "No," I answered, and I might have added that I didn't wish to hear it either. "Well," she continued, the was a very likely young man and he wanted a careful wife, so he thought of a way he could find out. One morning he went to call upon the different girls of his acquaintance and asked them each for the scrap ings of their bread bowls to feed his horses. You see they all wanted him, so they got all they could for him. Finally he found a girl who hadn't any, on he asked her to be his wife, because he thought she must be economical.1 "Now, said Aunt Rachel, trium phantly, "suppose a young man should ask you for the scrapings of your bread bowl, what could you say?"

"What could I say " I repeated scennilly, why, I'd tell him if he couldn't anord to buy outs for his horses they might starve. I wouldn't rob the pig to leed them."

I suppose Aunt Rachel thought that lessen was all lost on me; but as true as you like I never knead the bread to this day without think ing of her lesson in economy. Detroit live

It made me shudder. OW I G I CAN A CATE JUNES.

That birds, however apparently safely hung his head being as bald and shining as a white in cages, are unsale from the skill and curning of the cal, may be gathered from many instance of the extraordinary leaps they are capable of making to attain their prey. We are told by a reliable authority, that when his cat was a year old he was seen severa days in succession to take his position on a show case four feet high, licking his chops while watching a canary in a cage suspended from the ceiling eight feet from the case. he ceiling was eleven feet from the floor, and the cage an ordinary cylindrical one. While thus observing the cat and thinking how remote was his chance of plunder, the anima remote was his chance of piunder, the amma suddenly sprang at the cage and caught his paws in it. His weight swung the cage up a rainst the culing, spilling seed and water and ferrifying the canaty. After swinging to and fro severatimes the cat jumped to the thor uninjured. Our informant measured the distance from the top of the cage and founc it to he ten 'eet, so that the cat made an ascent of six feet in eight, or up-n an incline of nearly thirty-five degrees. The surprise here is that the bird eschaed, for it is during its terror and while beating itself from side to side of the cage that the hooked claws of the cat are prepared to receive it, and if any portion of the bird is caught it is rapidly, pulled through the wire and the cat and the bird disappear before the spectator can recover his aston-ishment. YEARS BYRENCKAD PCCREYORS ATTACKED BY INDIANS.

The western division of the Tayden Survey, under Prof. James T. Gardner, was attacked by Indians whi e traveling in Western Colorado, o the 15th of Au just. About half-past four, Prof Conduct writes, when ". was shead searching for water pools, in a ravine, and hr. Gannels was hal a mile in the rear of the train taking topography, make Indians came rading afterthim, making signs of riendship and then shr king hands. He rode on with them to be main party, when they desired to shake hands with every body. Messes, Gannett, Peale, McCreary, and Northington recognised three o them as being with a sand of women and, chieven that they had met on the reservation, twenty miles east of the Dolores, where the bane, were en-gaged in hunting. The neigns recognized her, Cannett's party, and recalled some meiden a of their former meeting. McCreary a so said quite confidently that he had seen the spokesman of the party at the Les Linos Agency, at the ra ion issue on uly 1st. This, with the fac that they called themselves Vamosa Utes, and showed a mutilated paper from White River A sency, qaite disarmed suspicion. They were ve y arix dus for u- to camp at some mud-holes close by, but we found that neither men nor animals could drink the nasty fluid. They then ried to trade for tohacco and poweer. As we had neither to spare, we shook hands, and, bid ling them "aduss," started forward over the bil.

No sooner had the rear guard passed the brow than the Indians commenced firing from behind it, Kelsey and Adams came very near being killed, bullets striking the ground cose to them. Being in the advance, I roce at once o the rear. The soys begged to be allowed to charge the Indians, but I considerer it unadvisable, considering that they were protecter by a hill, and mounted on swift borses, and we can tired, slow therefore ordered the train forward in a test to get out of range of the val behind; then, taking Madera and McCrea y with me, galloped toward a hill on the righ, and in 4d-vance, under which the train must pass to reach more open ground. The redskins were already upon the approved slopes, it as we dreve them from it, and held the point till he train 'was out of

The Indians continued to follow and harass them for hearly two days, but fort mately the promess of the Indian am saved to men. At the same time the party were suffering severely from thirst. Prof. Gardner says: Xy physical strength was almost exhausted for mant of fooand water, when Mr. Gaunest hap vely thought of cannest tomatoes. These he wared down me, for I had sunkion the ground: When all was ready I rallied again, and led he way up the trail, closely followed by Adams. It was the critical moment, when the Incians might have killed half of us, but the cowards had been taught such a lesson by Mader: and I get behind us three dead mules and one out in the

We then pushed our jade I mit es to their fastest trot, bearing southwest across the table-faul, for I determined to strike, for our sumply (camp on the Mancos River. The adians being afraid of authush, went a long way round to get on to the plateau. We thus were far ahead when their pursuit commenced, and were able to eiu le them under corer of the wood so which, in some places, cover the plateau. Tey cut used from one place towards which we were making for water: but at sunset we for unstely discovered a small spring, and the lives of men and animals were saved.

Out of sixty hours from the moining of the 15th we were in the saddle forty right. Of thirty two, animals we brought off twenty eight. Three of these are wounded, but not budly. 1 Not a man was wounded and none are sick. It is thought that plumfer was be main cheekly and that they were shooting to ke or cropple the animals so that the supplies we fid have two be left, which was eventually the case.
